What to Expect

For this specific presentation, you can expect the following features to be available:

Feature	Included
Consultation with a member of the neurodivergent arts community	Yes-two of our performers and our tech person, are a member of the Neurodivergent community.
Low sensory translation of the performance lighting	Yes-the lights will be dimmed slightly, to accommodate sensory sensitivities towards bright lighting.
Low sensory translation of the performance Sound	Yes-the show will keep sound effects and intro music at a lower volume, to accommodate auditory sensitivities of neurodiverse individuals.
Addition of the house lights at a low level	Yes-the lighting will be dim
Open door policy	Yes-people may get up to go to the waiting area for a break if they need to, as it may be challenging for some neurodiverse individuals to sit down for extended periods of time.
Walkaround policy	No-we will not be allowing people to walk around the audience space, as this will be distracting to the performers.
Open phone policy	No-if an individual needs to use their phone to regulate themselves, they will need to do so in the waiting area before returning back to their seat when ready. We suggest people with this potential sit closer to the back, to minimise distraction.

Event facilitation by a member of the neurodivergent arts community	Yes-the producer of the show is a member of the neurodivergent community.
Confirmed available Quiet Room	No
Extra FOH staff for the event day	No
Capped tickets	No
